^a[a] The Act came into force on 12th June, 1957-See S.R.O. 1931 .published in Gaz. of Ind., 10-6-1957, Pt. II, S. 3,Ext., p. 1967.

STATEMENTS OF OBJECTS AND REASONS "According^{to} the Industrial Policy Resolution of 1956 the future development of coal is the responsibility of the State. All new units in the coal industry will be set up only by the State save in exceptional circumstances as laid down in the Resolution. The production of coal in India in 1955 was 38 million tons and the target for production for the Second Five Year Plan has been fixed at 60 million tons per annum. It has been decided that out of the additional production of 22 million tons per annum envisaged, the public sector should produce an additional 12 million tons per annum, the balance being allocated to the private industry for production from existing collieries and immediately contiguous areas. Out of the additional 12 million tons in the public sector, the bulk (10 million tons per annum) will have to be raised by the development of new coalfields, such as Korba, Karanpura, Kathara and Jhilimili and Bistrampur . Very nearly all the coal bearing areas however are covered by mining leases held by private persons or prospecting licences which carry a right to a mining lease. Hence it is proposed to take power to acquire unworked coal bearing areas covered by private leases or prospecting licences which are found surplus to the production required in the private sector and to work these areas as lessees of the State Governments. With the acquisition of zamindari rights by the State Governments, the rights in minerals are now vested in all areas in the State Governments, and it is not appropriate to use Land Acquisition Act, 1894, for the acquisition of mineral rights, particularly because the Central Government does not intend to acquire the proprietary rights vested in the States. There is no other existing Central or State legislation under which the Government has power to acquire immediately the lessees' right over the coal bearing areas required by Government for the additional coal production. It is accordingly considered necessary to take powers by fresh legislation to acquire the lessees' rights over unworked coal bearing areas on payment of reasonable compensation to the lessees, and without affecting the State Government's rights as owner of the minerals or the royalty payable to the State Government on minerals. The Bill provides for payment of reasonable compensation for the acquisition of the rights of prospecting licensees and mining lessees. The principles for determining compensation are set out, in essence, in clause 13 of the Bill. These are similar to the principles contained in the rules issued with the approval of Parliament under S.7 of the Mines and Minerals (Development and Regulation) Act, 1948. In regard to the acquisition of mining leases, the compensation payable under the Bill will be the actual legitimate expenditure incurred by the leaseholder, plus a sum, in the nature of interest, calculated on the expenditure incurred and not exceeding 50 per cent. of such expenditure" - Gaz. of India, Extra., 13-5-1957, Pt. II, Section 2, p. 57. Act 51 of 1957.- With a view to enable the public sector to achieve the target of coal production set for it in the second Five Year Plan, the Coal Bearing Areas (Acquisition and Development) Act, 1957 (20 of 1957) was passed during the May, 1957 session of Parliament. Experience in the administration of the Act has indicated the necessity to incorporate into the Act a new section empowering the Central Government, in cases of urgency, to dispense with an enquiry under Section 8 of the Act, the provision proposed being similar to S.17(4) of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894. 2. As section 13 stands at present, interest as prospecting expenditure incurred before the date of the mining lease is not admissible. This has been represented to cause grave hardship. It is now proposed to allow interest on all reasonable and bona fide expenditure incurred before the date of the mining lease only in those cases where a prospecting licence has led to the issue of mining lease. As before, the total interest payable would be limited to 50% of the principal, as the maximum compensation available. 3. It is also proposed to take the opportunity, thus provided, to make certain verbal amendments to some of the sections of the Act by way of abundant caution. - Gaz. of Ind., 2-12-1957, Pt. II. S. 2, Ext., p. 903. Act 23 of 1969.- Before the enactment of the Coal Bearing Areas (Acquisition and Development) Act, 1957 which came into force on the 12th June, 1957, proceedings for acquisition of land for the purpose of prospecting coal seams for the development of collieries to be owned and worked by the Central Government used to be taken under Land Acquisition Act, 1894. While under sub-section (1) of section 28 of the 1957-Act notifications issued under section 4 of the 1894-Act are treated as notifications issued under section 4 of the 1957 Act, sub-section (3) of the said section 28 provides that any objection preferred under section 5A of the 1894 Act shall be deemed to be an objection preferred under section 8 of the 1957 Act and might be disposed of as if the objection had been made in relation to a notification issued under section 7 of the 1957 Act, so that the Central Government might at any time make a declaration under section 9 of the 1957 Act in respect of the land covered by such notification. 2. In the acquisition proceedings in respect of two notifications (No. S. O. 1759, dated the 7th August, 1958 and No. S. O. 25, dated the 22nd December, 1959) out of the six notifications pending at the commencement of the 1957 Act, no objections had been filed under section 5A of the 1894 Act. In a writ petition before the High Court of Madhya Pradesh wherein the validity of the notification No. S. O. 1759, dated the 7th August, 1958, was challenged, the acquisition proceedings were declared illegal by that High Court on the ground that the notification issued under section 9 of the 1957 Act therein was not preceded by a notification under section 7 of that Act giving notice of the intention to acquire the lands concerned. While section 28 of that Act provides for a case where objections have been filed under section 5A of the 1894 Act, no provision exists therein to cover a case where no such objection had been filed and, therefore, the provisions of the said section 28 could not save the proceedings from being successfully challenged. 3. It is therefore proposed to make suitable amendments in the Act- (a) providing that in a case where no objections under section 5A of the 1894 Act had been filed, action under section 9 of the 1957 Act could be taken as if a notification under section 7 of that Act had been issued and no objection under section 8 thereof had been preferred: (b) providing for validation of the acquisitions made under the aforesaid notification No. S.O. 1759, dated the 7th August, 1958 and under a similar notification No. S. O. 25, dated the 22nd December, 1959, because the National Coal Development Corporation Limited in which the lands, after acquisition, had been vested could not work the lands as a result of the High Court decision and the coal production programme of the Government was seriously hampered. 4. Opportunity has also been taken to make a slight verbal alteration in sub-section (3) of section 28 to bring it in line with the wording of section 7 and Section 9. 5. The Bill seeks to achieve the above objects. -Gaz. of Ind., 10-8-67. Pt. II, S. 2, Ext.. p. 729. Act 54 of 1971.- The Coal Bearing Areas (Acquisition and Development) Act, 1957 (20 of 1957) (hereinafter referred to as the Coal Bearing Areas Act) provides inter alia or the acquisition by the Central Government of virgin lands, including underground minerals, or rights in or over such lands. Under the Explanation to clause (a) of sub-section (5) of section 13. which provides that the value of any minerals lying in the land will not be taken into consideration in determining the market value of any land no compensation is payable to the State Governments in respect of the underground minerals which also vest in the Central Government when the land is acquired by the Central Government. The State Governments have been representing from time to time that this results in their being deprived of large sums by way of revenue. The Central Government has considered the representations of the State Government and has decided that the State Governments should be paid purely on an ex gratia basis such sums as they would have been entitled to receive by way of royalty, had mining leases been granted in respect of the areas acquired. It is now proposed to amend the Coal Bearing Areas Act to make such payments obligatory.

2. Sections 4 to COAL BEARING AREAS (ACQUISITION AND DEVELOPMENT) ACT, 1957 deal with the procedure for acquiring coal bearing areas under the Act. Briefly stated, the procedure envisages a preliminary notification respecting intention of the Government to prospect for coal on land in any locality, a second notification of the intention of the Government to acquire the whole or any part of the land or any rights in or over the land after satisfying itself that coal is obtainable therein and a declaration, after considering objections to the second notification, that the land or any rights in or over the land should be acquired. This procedure is for all material purposes similar to the procedure provided under Land Acquisition Act, 1894, as it stood before it was amended in 1967. The Supreme Court had in State of Madhya Pradesh v. Vishnu Prasad Sharma, AIR 1966 SC 1593, held that under the relevant provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, it was not permissible for Government to acquire by stages any land in respect of which it had notified its intention to acquire. The Land Acquisition Act was amended in 1967 to overcome the effect of the decision of the Supreme Court and to render possible acquisition of land by stages as also to validate such acquisition made in the past. Under the Coal Bearing Areas Act also acquisition of land has been made by stages in several cases in the past and it would be convenient if Government has the power to acquire land by stages because that would enable Government to acquire only so much of the land as it may be in a position to exploit without delay and leave the remaining land with the owner till such time as the Government is in a position to exploit the same. It is, therefore, proposed to amend the Coal Bearing Areas Act on the same lines on which the Land Acquisition (Amendment and Validation) Act, 1967, amended the Land Acquisition Act, 1894 and also to validate past acquisitions of land. -3. It is proposed to avail of the present opportunity to make certain other amendments to remove lacunae disclosed during the actual working of the Coal Bearing Areas Act. These amendments are (a) for providing (on the same lines as the sixth clause of S.24 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894) that any increase to the value of the other land of the owner likely to accrue from the use to which the land acquired will be put shall not be taken into consideration in assessing the compensation payable under section 13 of the Act. (b) for investing the Tribunal, constituted under section 14 of the Act for determining compensation payable in any case, with powers of a civil Court in respect of matters like summoning and enforcing the attendance of any person examining on oath. etc.: and (c) for enabling every person who claims to be a person interested in compensation (not being a person who has received the amount otherwise than under protest), to prefer an application before the Tribunal. 4 The Bill seeks to achieve the above objects. -Gaz. of Ind., 2-8-71, Pt. II, S. 2, Ext., p. 503.

3[(5A) In determining the amount of compensation for any land acquired under section 9 , any increase to the value of the other land of the person interested, likely to accrue from the use to which the land acquired will be put shall not be taken into consideration.]
